

Security Risks and Response

Every year thousands of people are kidnapped worldwide, while many more are the victim of threats, extortion, piracy or malicious detention. Whether trying to mitigate the risks you face, enhance your crisis preparedness or ensure you can access the necessary 24/7 support during an incident Convex provides clients with an innovative approach which combines decades of underwriting expertise with deep operational crisis response experience.

About Convex

Convex is an international specialty insurer and reinsurer with operations in Bermuda, London, New York and Luxembourg. We underwrite insurance and reinsurance for complex specialty risks across a diverse range of business lines, with underwriters who are well practiced in leading lines of business and developing innovative new products.

Our success is reflected in the speed and depth of our growth. As we approach the end of our third full underwriting year Convex is a 480-strong, $3 billion insurance and re-insurance business.

Security Risks and Response

Kidnap, extortion, threats and malicious detention are among the most stressful experiences a family or organisation can experience, meaning it's critical to choose an insurer and response team you can trust. Convex's Security Risks underwriting team has 40 years of relevant underwriting experience while our response team has over 200 years of collective crisis experience, including responding to 1,600 cases.

How we support clients?

Taken together our experienced Security Risks underwriters and our unique inhouse, fully integrated global team of 19 specialist response consultants can underwrite, advise and respond to a broad spectrum of crisis situations, including:

Kidnap

Extortion

Threats

Disappearance

Malicious detention

Hijack and hostage crises

Express or virtual kidnaps

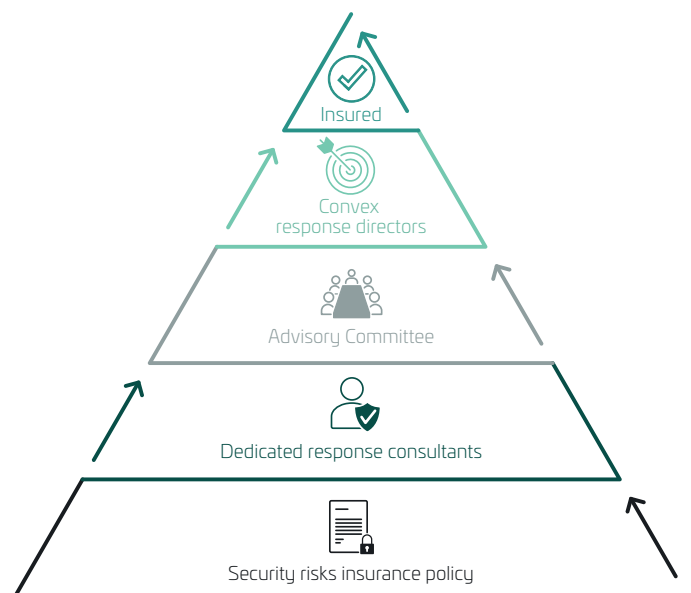

Evacuation

While every risk and every incident is different our sole objective is to provide clients with the competitive, innovative insurance solutions they need, as well as the advice and support required to manage any challenging situation and ensure the quickest possible resolution of the incident.

Innovation, quality assurance and expert insight

We pride ourselves on our engagement philosophy of partnering with brokers and clients alike. Our unique Advisory Committee model ensures the highest level of transparency, legal expertise and quality assurance.

Consisting of senior response consultants, external subject matter experts and including the broker, our Advisory Committee allows us to harness to the benefit of deployed consultants the best possible advice, expert insight and specialist support available, in turn ensuring the client's best interests are protected at every stage of a major incident.
